

1968 Les Paul Custom Historic Reissue

The new 1968 Les Paul Custom from Gibson Custom reaches back into the company's less notorious era of craftsmanship, where a few gems were slow to get their due in the bright glow of the models that had risen to fame in the wake of the 1950's. Among those guitars to achieve legendary status outside of the most acknowledged period of Gibson's past, the 1968 Les Paul Custom is a true stand out. More than a few Rock Stars burned bright in the late 1970's and 80's with a Les Paul Custom in hand from Gibson's late 1960's and early 1970's line up. Today's 1968 Les Paul Custom incorporates the same feature line up as is found on its original counterpart while offering the consistent, high craft and material quality of modern era Gibson Custom Historic Reissue guitars.

Among the features that highlight the new '68 Les Paul Custom is the incorporation of several details carried over from the True Historic range, including re-engineered pickup rings, wet-sanded, thin lacquer finish and double-carved, hand sanded top and neck carve. Other fine details include rolled fingerboard binding, '68 Custom braided, 2 wire pickups and Black Cat capacitors. All of the minutia adds up to a replica that captures, not only the best of the originals that were built in 1968, but at a level of craft that exceeds to standards of the guitar's era.
